

WE NOMINATE

The 41 residents of the Princeton Community whose membership in the American Philosophical Society, the blue-ribbon 220-year old learned society dating back to Benjamin Franklin's Philadelphia Junta, underscores the traditions of scholarship and teaching which have shaped modern-day Princeton. Nowhere else in these United States, including the mushrooming enclaves of research on the Pacific Coast and in the Greater Boston Area, is there a ratio of "Philosophical Members" to total population even faintly comparable to the one currently prevailing in the Borough and Township of Princeton and their immediate environs.

While membership in the Philadelphia-based Society, 15 of whose early members signed the Declaration of Independence and 18 of whom dominated the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention, can never be considered a "be-all and end-all" in the entwined spheres of education and research, election to it rests upon major achievements either in mathematics and the natural sciences, or the humanities, or the social sciences. Limited to 500 members in this country and 75 from overseas, the Society, meeting in its posh headquarters adjacent to Independence Hall, annually holds elections only to fill those openings created by death.

It was the newly announced election of 45-year old Ansley Johnson Coale, Director of Princeton University's Office of Population Research and understandably aware of population growth as the overwhelming problem of this century, that sent collectors of Princetoniana "into the stacks." The most reliable available sources show that 11 of New Jersey's 13 members are Princetonians. The "Princeton delegation", headed by mathematician Luther Pfahler Eisenhart, for long years the Philosophical Society's chief executive officer, compares with a total of 26 in Connecticut, 17 in Philadelphia, 68 in New York City, 78 in Greater Boston, 30 in the District of Columbia and 19 in Berkeley, California.

A breakdown of the Princeton "statistic" indicates that 27 are, or have been, affiliated with the University, that 13 are members of The Institute for Advanced Study, and that one, RCA's brilliant Russian-born Vladimir Kosma Zworykin, represents industrial research. The range of mankind's search for knowledge, from astronomy and particle physics to vertebrate paleontology and the restoration of the Agora in Athens, is reflected in the Princeton members' areas of specialization, while the contention that Princeton's rise to eminence is a post-World War II phenomenon is weakened by the fact that the Princeton associations of the great majority stretch back into the 1930's.

Coale's career, and his interests and accomplishments, suggest the qualities the Philosophical Society seeks to recognize. Following in the footsteps of his predecessor, and fellow Society members, Frank Wallace Notestein, now president of the Population Council, this native of Baltimore assumed direction of the Office of Population Research in 1959 and only after he had established himself as a demographer of the front rank. For instance, his appraisal of the accuracy of the 1950 U.S. Census pinpointed an undercount of 13 per cent in our non-white population and his studies of the broad topic of "Population and Economic Development" are proving invaluable to students of the underdeveloped nations.

For dramatizing the role Princeton and her institutions and laboratories are playing in an ever-changing world, for their achievements as creative individuals and, above all, for knowing that "to speak the truth we must first know the truth", these 11 are TOWN TOPICS' nominees as

HOSPITAL IS FIRST

With Intensive Care Unit. "When it comes to the care of patients, everyone in any way connected with Princeton Hospital likes to set new records," says one young member of the hospital's staff. "For instance, Merwick, the fine long-term nursing unit on Bayard Lane, is second to none in its attractive appearance and its medical facilities."

"Again, the free blood donor service which the Princeton Red Cross chapter and the hospital maintain for the benefit of all patients is, as far as we know, the first and one of only two of the kind in the country."

On Monday, Princeton Hospital scored two more firsts to add to an already enviable reputation among authorities in the field as a model of its type and size. It became the first hospital in the state and the first of any hospital close to its size in the country to have an intensive care unit built around a central electronic monitoring system.

The nine-bed unit, which is designed for the care of seriously ill patients and is staffed by specially trained personnel, adds an important new area to the hospital's broad range of patient care. Its conception, development and completion have been the result of bringing together the talents and

WIRED FOR SOUND: Peggy Salamon, senior student in Princeton Hospital's School of Practical Nursing, looks up as Rita Thompson, head nurse on the hospital's new intensive care unit, demonstrates the application of the electronic monitoring devices. On Miss Salamon's right arm is the instrument for relaying blood-pressure readings to the central control station. On her head is a band containing a small photo-electric cell for measuring pulse beat. In addition, the system can take and record temperature, heart action and respiration rate continuously or as often as required. At upper left are the twin outlets for oxygen and suction appliances. energies of many Princetonians from many professions and occupations, some by deliberate design, some almost by happy coincidence.

What Is Intensive Care? "Intensive care is one dimension of a revolutionary change in patient care which is currently being developed by hospitals throughout the country," says Dr. Alfred T. Holt, chairman of the department of anesthesiology and head of the medical staff committee in charge of supervision of the unit. Other members of the advisory committee are Dr. John R. Burbridge, chief of the internal medicine section, and Dr. David B. Miller of the section of general surgery.

"Essentially this is a specialized type of nursing care supplemented by complex electronic equipment which makes it possible to keep very close watch over the seriously ill every minute of the day and night," Dr. Holt points out. "The equipment provides continuous and accurate measurement of the vital functions of the patients at a central control station."

Dr. Holt is a good example of how both planning and fortunate coincidence combined in the successful development of the new facility. Brought to Princeton Hospital as chief anesthesiologist a little over a year ago, he had previously been a member of the staff at the Mary Hitchcock Clinic in Hanover, N. H.

The clinic's hospital had been something of a pioneer in setting up a rudimentary, experimental intensive care unit while Dr. Holt was there. Therefore, when Princeton Hospital started looking this Spring for a man qualified to head the advisory committee for its new facility, Dr. Holt was the logical and immediate choice.

The Unit at Work. What will Princeton Hospital's unique intensive care unit do? Says Hospital Administrator John W. Kauffman: "The electronic monitoring system measures, at the central control station, a patient's pulse rate, heart action, temperature, respiration rate and blood pressure. "The measurements can be made either continuously or as frequently as needed. In essence, the new unit's monitoring equipment provides a most efficient 'distant early warning system' for changes in the patient which enables the nursing staff to take prompt action as it is needed."

"The chief purpose of the unit is not to offset the continually plaguing problem of the nationwide shortage of staff and private duty nurses," said one member of the hospital staff. "Its primary function is to give minutely close attention to seriously ill post-operative patients, to patients who become more acutely ill during hospitalization, and to patients who arrive at the hospital in a seriously ill condition."

"The kind of illness or specific type of nursing care needed will determine the length of time a patient remains in the unit. Admission to the new facility is accomplished by direct order of the attending physician," he added.

Constant Attention. Another advantage of the electronic monitoring system is that it never sleeps, goes off duty or takes a coffee break. With no discomfort whatsoever to the patient, it vigilantly measures and records the data necessary to close supervision and treatment.

In addition to the elaborate monitoring equipment in the intensive care unit, each bed

INTENSIVE CARE UNIT "MESSAGE CENTER": Heart and brains of the remote-control electronic monitoring system in Princeton Hospital's new unit for the care of seriously ill is behind this panel. On it can be read and recorded continuous and precise measurement of vital functions of the various patients in the unique nine-bed facility. At left, Head Nurse Rita Thompson reports one of the immediate readings on a patient to a member of the medical staff. Upper right section of control panel is area where oscilloscopes will be installed to give individual heart-action impulses of four patients at the same time.

location is equipped with piped-in oxygen outlets and suction appliances. The entire area is air conditioned for patient comfort. And, as another example of the meticulous care and thought that have gone into the planning of the unit, the corridor lights are operated by a rheostat which makes possible as much or as little illumination as required.

When asked to specify some of the kinds of patients for whom the new unit will be a boon, a hospital medical staff member named as one type those recovering from major surgery. These cases would be treated in the intensive care unit after leaving the post-operative recovery room. "Others could include patients with serious heart ailments requiring the constant use of oxygen and alleviative drugs and close observation of cardiac reaction," he added. "Patients severely injured in accidents, those brought to the hospital suffering from a massive overdose of drugs, and those suffering from acute internal bleeding from an undetermined cause would also be potential occupants of the intensive care unit. We expect that the average stay in the unit will be something between four and six days," he said.

By the Many for the Few. Of the numerous Princetonians who have worked tirelessly to bring the hospital's unique new unit to its completion, none have been more instrumental than the members of the Hospital Aid Committee. After a combined medical and administrative task force at the hospital decided some time back to install such a facility, the Aid Committee members promptly offered to pay for it through the proceeds from their activities in and for the hospital. This they have done.

By coincidence, a former Princetonian, Dr. John H. Wallace, is responsible for the major development of the ingenious monitoring system. Formerly an engineer with RCA, Dr. Wallace joined the Air-Shields Company, of Hattboro, Pa., about three years ago to design and perfect the electronic equipment which is the important "message center" of the intensive care unit.

Again by coincidence, Air-Shields got its start by producing "isolettes", germ-free enclosures for premature infants. The isolette is a refinement of the original Chapple incubator. Assisting Dr. Chapple in his early work on the device was his son-in-law, Dr. Aims C. McGuinness, then a Philadelphia pediatrician and now a Princeton resident and valued member of the hospital's board of trustees.

Designer and Trustee. The hospital was also particularly fortunate in having as a new member of its board Charles H. Magers, nationally known designer and a Princeton resident since 1950. Mr. Magers generously contributed his time and talents in designing the quietly attractive decor of the unit, including the special waiting room for patients' families which is an integral part of the section.

In addition to his design work on the unit, Mr. Magers has also redesigned other areas of the building. The doctors' lounge, the maternity department and the nursery are other examples of his tasteful proficiency and of his unselfish interest in Princeton Hospital.

The hard work and skill of these individuals and groups, in addition to the foresight and determination of the hospital's able medical and administrative personnel, all culminated in the successful completion of Princeton Hospital's newest and most unusual arm for fighting the ills of mankind — its intensive care unit. Nobody, obviously, would choose to be ill or injured. But, also obviously, it happens. And when it does, there is no better or more thoroughly equipped and staffed community hospital than Princeton's. Of this fact, the intensive care unit is evidence anew.

MAN HELD IN KNIFING
Physician in Satisfactory Condition. Dr. Howard Unangst, 35, of 182 North Harrison, is in satisfactory condition in Princeton Hospital with more than 200 stitches holding together the knife wounds inflicted on him as an aftermath of a minor automobile accident early Sunday morning.

Edward Buckner, 31, of Staten Island, has admitted to state police that he wielded the knife. In default of $5,000 bail, he is being held in Somerset County jail, Somerville, to await grand jury action on charges of atrocious assault.

About 12:30 Sunday morning, according to state police, Mr. Buckner was backing out of the private driveway of a house on Route 27 in the community known as Little Rocky Hill. Just as he crossed the white line, his car stalled and before he could start it again, his vehicle was struck by the car driven by Dr. Unangst, traveling south on the highway.

Damage to both cars was minor, police said. Dr. Unangst's car had a dented left front fender, and Mr. Buckner's car a damaged left door and rear fender.

Vicious Attack is Made. But the accident, minor though it may have been, had major repercussions. As police reconstruct the events, they began when Dr. Unangst and Mr. Buckner climbed out of their cars and began to exchange words.

Mr. Buckner claims that Dr. Unangst punched and kicked him and that he fought only in self-defense. Police say that the physician did not provoke the attack. Investigation is continuing and so far, police have not revealed what witnesses to the fight might have disclosed.

In any case, Dr. Unangst was knocked to the road. His front teeth were kicked out. He broke away from Mr. Buckner and ran into the Pine Tree Tavern, adjoining the driveway from which Mr. Buckner had emerged, to call police.

When state troopers arrived, they found Dr. Unangst bleeding severely and assumed he had been injured in the automobile accident.

Knife Wounds Revealed. A passing motorist, Bay De Marco, of Kendall Park, drove the physician to Princeton Hospital. Troopers followed with Mr. Buckner, having taken him into custody on charges of simple assault, and not realizing that Dr. Unangst had been knifed.

Male Is Cleared of Hatch Act Charges

Raymond F. Male, New Jersey State Labor Commissioner and former mayor of Princeton, was cleared this week of charges that he had violated the Hatch Act.

The charges were based on speeches made by Mr. Male in the course of the gubernatorial campaign in 1961. In his speeches, Mr. Male defended the record of Governor Robert Meyner against charges made by James S. Mitchell, Republican candidate for governor. Mr. Mitchell was defeated by Richard Hughes.

Mr. Male was said to have violated the Hatch Act because he was a cabinet officer in a department that administered Federal funds, and received all or part of his salary from the Federal government.

Insisting on his innocence, Mr. Male maintained that he received no part of his salary directly from the Federal government. In addition, he cited his position as mayor of the Borough. Office-holders are exempt from Hatch Act provisions.

Charges against Mr. Male were filed in January 1962, but hearings were not held until this spring. A representative of the U.S. Civil Service Commission heard the evidence, and then presented his findings to the Commission. The decision was based on these facts.

Raymond F. Male

Investigating state police are Troopers Richard Copeman and Steven Joblonowski.

WHO OWNS THE ROAD?

Council's Face Is Red. Back in 1942, Michael A. Tamasi, 102 Spruce Street, bought some property at the intersection of Spruce and the extension of Maple Street. In 1956 he applied for a building permit to erect a home there.

He was told at that time that, in order to get the permit, he would have to pave the extension of Maple Street on his property and maintain it as a private road. This he did. Then he built the house and has lived there happily and quietly ever since — until just recently, that is.

On Tuesday night, Mr. Tamasi and his lawyer, William C. Baggitt, appeared before Mayor and Borough Council with an unusual, apparently justifiable but obviously perplexing plea. It seems that Mr. Tamasi doesn't own the road after all, that he in effect paid some $1,300 of his own money to improve borough property, and that he understandably feels that he should be reimbursed.

The mix-up came to light in this way: Recently the Buchanan Construction Corp. bought property just across Maple Street Extension and started to use what Mr. Tamasi, with every good reason, thought was his private road. Mr. Tamasi raised an objection, and Buchanan Construction turned the complaint over to their lawyer.

Into the Archives. A title search by the company's attorney came up with the finding that, back in the late 1800's, the strip of land on which the road is located was deeded to the borough. So all of Mr. Tamasi's time and money that went into improving the road was really not his responsibility or obligation. But how to reimburse him?

Mayor and Council frankly admitted that they were both puzzled and concerned about the situation, but also at a loss to know how to solve the problem legally. There is no such appropriation that can be made during the balance of this year, and the legal ramifications are considerable in order to pay back a private citizen for some improvement he made to Borough-owned property because of an error by a now-deceased Borough official.

Finally, the problem of Mr. Tamasi's (or is it the Borough's?) road was handed on, at Councilman Alfred E. Sorenson's suggestion, to Council's Public Works Committee and to Borough attorney Gordon D.

Round-Up

After the broiling weather of two weeks ago, the gentle but persistent slow bake last week was a comparatively pleasant experience in mid-Summer Princeton. By day the temperature reached the 80s, by night it receded into the benign 60s and 50s. About three-quarters of an inch of rain helped the greenery. But nothing is quite so green as the five fairways at Springdale Golf Club where underground piping and sprinklers, using water from the canal, have made a virtual desert flourish again.

A joint meeting of the Borough Council and the Township Committee at Borough Hall was held recently to discuss the further development and operation of Community Park on State Road as a recreation center. Borough Councilman Alan W. Carriek and Township Committeeman John O. Green Jr. were appointed as a subcommittee to expedite action. They, along with the recreation committees of both municipalities, are charged with the formulation of recommendations for the approval of the two governing bodies.

Just in case you haven't got enough to do during the usual August doldrums in Princeton, you could keep yourself pretty busy by cleaning your family's shoes. How? By tossing together this mixture first invented in 1827 and recently passed on to TOWN TOPICS by Charlie Tulumado of Nassau Shoe Repair: "Boil one quart of milk, let it stand till cold. Then take one ounce of oil of vitriol, one ounce of spirits and salt, shake them well together, and add one ounce of red lavender. Add half a pint of vinegar with the white of an egg beat to a froth."

Well-chilled, it might also come in handy during the football season to hurry along those announced visitors who show up at your house to celebrate their team's win over the Tigers.

Notes from the police docket: second-story apartment of James Koyadakis, 242 Nassau, turned inside out last Wednesday. Nothing taken. Neighbor reported seeing man leave via the apartment's fire escape. Chief McCrohan says that anybody who sees anyone spooking around in vicinity of unoccupied houses or apartments should notify the police immediately. The unhumorous copping of the sign in front of Morven continues. It was grabbed again last weekend.

"Princeton University" will be the topic of a taped commentary by Edmund S. DeLong, its director of public information, this Friday on two Trenton radio stations. At 7 p.m. on WBUD and 15 minutes later on WTTM.

Avid collectors of Princetoniana will have a chance to get souvenirs from the now-levelled Upper Pyne building. A few friezes and figures are available, first come, first served, from the office of Palmer Square Inc. It's later than you think, though, for the motto on the building's sundial: Gone to Robert W. van de Velde, 222 Western Way.

Remember when you were young how bleak the world could look on occasion? TOWN TOPICS asked some of the younger generation this week what their biggest disappointment had been, and the varied answers have a reminiscent ring (page 5).

What's a Papillon? Pictures and story on page 16, not only about these unusual little dogs but about a long-time Princeton resident who breeds them for show and sale. And another picture-story on page 18 about a man who has given to the Blood Donor Program on a record 24 different occasions.

Golf, tennis, baseball, softball, football and fishing are included in the sports section (22-26). Princeton's first coin-operated dry-cleaning machines are pictured and described in "It's New to Us," page 7. The one motion picture you should see if you see only one a year is reviewed on page 6.

Relief — If Temporary

The sweating palm,
 The fevered brow
 Do not combine
 In syndrome now.
 The symptoms may,
 Of course, return:
 (The back may sweat,
 The temple burn)
 But for the moment,
 Life is sweet:
 The patient's well,
 There's no more heat!

August is traditionally cooler than July, which in 1963 produced two unwelcome heat waves—one that brought four consecutive days with the temperature in the 90's.

Prolonged periods of hot weather are unlikely in the weeks ahead, although there may be a day or two when the world seems to sizzle gently. For the upcoming weekend, however, generally fair and temperature a shade below normal.

Griffin. What the solution will be nobody knows, but maybe Mr. Tamasi will get that $1,300 back.

In other business to come before Mayor and Council, an amendment allowing for a limited number of overnight parking spaces in two off-street lots was unanimously approved. As an experiment, $5-per-month parking permits will be issued for any 30-day period between one and six months for 19 spaces in the new Park Street lot and 15 for the lot at the corner of Mercer Street and University Place.

Passed on first reading a proposed ordinance to require a 10-foot set-back from the curb line for future building.

THE BITTER WITH THE SWEET: Even for children, life is not all sweetness and light. It has its share of disappointments as listed by Brendon Leyton (left), Harry Cahn (center) and Bob Sweeney, though adults may pine for the day when their biggest disappointments fell in the same category. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: What would you say was one of your biggest disappointments?

Where asked: Princeton's Playgrounds.

Brendon Leyton, 48 Robert Road, age 9: When my baby brother was born and he looked just like me.

Harry Cahn, 11 Madison Street, PHS freshman: When the movies raised their prices from 30 to 50 cents and when I could no longer get in for kid's prices.

Bob Sweeney, 15 Murray Place, age 10: When my mother forgot to put a quarter under my pillow when I lost a tooth. Also, the Harrison Park junior baseball team, alias the Mets. We lost every game by 10 runs or more. We lost one game, 33 to 4.

Karen Wright, 40 Murray Place, PHS freshman: When the Yankees got rid of Moose Skowron. I liked him, he was one of my favorites. And when Jack Benny turned 40.

Lorraine Duthie, 55 Fisher Avenue, PHS freshman: When I found out that Santa Claus wasn't real.

Chuck Holland, 35 Jackson Street, age 13: When I found out I was going to have to move from Princeton. We're going to have to move so they can put a road through. Also, when I found out Colt 45 wasn't going to be on TV anymore.

Jack Robertiello, 33 Wilton Street, age 12: When my sister was born a girl. I'd wanted a brother.

Patrick Costello, 51 Aiken Avenue, age 9: When my dog got run over.

Susan Landauer, 58 Aiken Avenue, age 11: When I found out the name of the teacher I was going to get for one grade. I didn't like her.

Jim Stonaker, Dutch Neck Road, Hightstown, 13: When my sister snapped my fishing pole. She told me she wanted to see how far it would bend.

Anthony Procaecino, 114 Linden Lane, 14: When Linda Ranallo broke up with me two months ago.

Pat McManimon, 30 Erdman Avenue, 12: Whenever I strike out in a ball game.

David Guerzini, 6 Spruce Lane, 14: When the Princeton University football team lost to Colgate and Cornell in 1962 and finished with a losing season.

Mark Landauer, 58 Aiken Avenue, 9: When school opened.

Sandra Wohlsehlegel, 42 Markham Road, 11: When I was invited to visit my aunt in Kentucky and my mother said she wouldn't let me and I got the measles at the same time.

Anthony Iacono, 84 Leigh Avenue, 10: When my sister

A Day to Remember

Happiness may be a Warm Puppy, as the current best seller claims, but what's Unhappiness?

Princeton youngsters haven't found a common denominator to identify it, but they've all had their disappointments at one time or another. What's more, they have the best solution, they can look back and laugh about it, now that it's over.

TOWN TOPICS' Inquiring Reporter asked a number of 'teens and pre-teens about moments in their lives when things weren't going right. The answers are both revealing and often amusing.

hits me and I can't hit her back because she is a baby.

Jamie Edwards, 175 John Street, 13: When I had to quit the Imperial Debs drill team.

Anthony Nini, 35 Carnahan Place, 11: When I broke my arm last summer and I couldn't play baseball. For missing so much last year, my mother let me join the Little League this year. Also when I was playing horse shoes once in a tournament. The guy I was playing threw a ringer to score 21, but I had one horse shoe left and threw a ringer on top of his. Then he threw another ringer on top of mine to win the championship. I really was disappointed that time.

Ellen Sinkler, 307 Witherspoon Street, 12: When I entered a contest I had seen on TV and didn't win anything.

Ricky Cunningham, 100½ Leigh Avenue, 13: When we missed the series by one game. I was on the Indians and the Tigers beat us. I made up for it, though. I got a trophy with the Hook & Ladder team, same season. We're not doing so hot this year, though.

Tommy Parker, 26 Leigh Avenue 11: My biggest disappointment is that I make so many errors in baseball.

James Pirone, 135 Bayard Lane, 12: That I'm not leading the PBA League in homers. I'm tied for second. The team I'm on isn't doing too well.

Nicholas "Mickey" Gaudioso, 17 Oakland Street, 10: When I missed one of the baseball games this year because I had to go some place. We were playing one of the best teams, too.

News Of The THEATRES

GARDEN

Sparrows Can't Sing
(through Tuesday) is the first movie done by the great English stage director Joan Littlefield. It is, in one over-used Britishism, smashing. Taken from a play by Stephen Lewis and adapted for the screen by Mr. Lewis and Miss Littlefield, it is a stroboscopic whirligig of life in East London, a restless, explosive, exuberant overview of the unfettered mores and unconfining morality of that boisterous demesne.

Actually, "Sparrows" might be thought of as a series of vaudeville acts lightly stuck together with explosively funny complications which go off like cherry bombs, hurting nothing but full of sudden surprise. The whole effect is that of almost perfect comedy.

More often than not a successful stage director falls miserably at turning out movies. The reverse is also the usual rather than the exception.
Not so with Miss Littlefield and "Sparrows." She shows

"EXPLOSIVELY FUNNY." So says TOWN TOPICS of "Sparrows Can't Sing," the British comedy on manners and morals now at The Garden. Barbara Windsor and James Booth are the principal fun-makers.

that, free of the relatively crippling confines of the stage,
she can make superb use of her abilities in change of speed and attitude and can move her characters and conflicts about with a swift (and unostentatiously careful) sleight-of-hand which, up to now, have not been fully available to her via the theater.

To tell the story of "Sparrows" in a review would be doing it a complete injustice. It could be dismissed as just one of those two-men-after-one-women things. Nothing could be further from the truth in describing the consummate artistry by which Miss Littlefield first unravels and then unravels the complicated strands which tie the movie together.

If your movie-attendance
rate is as low as one a year,
"Sparrows" is probably the movie you should see in '63.
It comes as close to being a masterpiece as any motion picture can.

PLAYHOUSE

Toys in the Attic (through Tuesday). The way down yonder in New Orleans theme of this film is based on a variation of the oldie, "Sick, Sick, Sick," as swung so persistently by Tennessee Williams and his Dixieland Band. This time it's Lillian "Happy" Hellman blowing lead horn. Like blue, man.
"Poys" is what Hollywood chooses to label "a decidedly adult film." By that, it's wood means, of course, "a decidedly adulterous film," with a couple of extra sexual short-circuits twisted into the main line for added marquee voltage.

The original story was a typical Hellman's mayonnaise — with capers; powerful and dramatic, unpleasant yet somehow fascinating. But it loses a lot of depth in its transfer from the theater, where it won the Drama Critics award for 1960, to the cinema, where it won't win the New Orleans Booster Club
award for 1963, that's for sure.

The script ambles its way through and about the problems of two spinster sisters,
one of whom exhibits an untidy passion for her amoral younger brother (played by Dean Martin, on detached service from Sinatra's Mafia). The writing lacks loutness, consequently the film becomes a kind of documentary of two women shrill-ing at each other over something that hardly seems worth all the decibels.

The one-big-unhappy-family
gambit that generates on stage considerable horror is reduced on screen to a point where it frequently produces mere torpor. And, though the movie is predictably full of vileness and violence, it runs as wild as an untamed Cajun mule, leaving director George Roy Hill far behind in the dust.

What was generally good drama as a play becomes improbable melodrama as a movie, a carpet-bagger's collection of caterwauling crises mixed in with unnecessary truck
about incest, miscegenation and other ham-and-grits erologic exercises. "Toys in the Attic," Hollywood-style, might better have been named "Ambivalence in the Basement."

PRINCE

Spencer's Mountain (through Saturday) is described by flick flacks as "homey, sentimental, heart-warming family entertainment." Maybe it is — for the Jukes family.

Actually, the only really high point of the film is the peak in the Grand Tetons where the Spencer family lives and breeds in the clear mountain air. Mom and Pop and their issue of nine cavort about the crag at a moral altitude somewhat lower than sea level.

Parents who would rather have their offspring learn the facts of life through some more antiseptic medium than big-screen, glorious Technicolor should take this advice from Mom Maureen O'Hara: "Come along, children. We'll wait for Daddy back in the truck."

"SEXUAL SHORT-CIRCUITS ADD MARQUEE VOLTAGE," but "Toys in the Attic" lacks the spark that builds a sure-fire hit, TOWN TOPICS reports. Here, Dean Martin and Yvette Mimieux show feeling for each other.

Donovan's Reef Sunday-
Tuesday is a kind of Oceania oater, a horse latitudes horse opera, which is both fun and funny and awash with enough action and non-Marquis-of-Queensbury fist-throwing to juggle the pulse of the most heat-energized Princetonian. Go see it you'll find the free-swinging hoopla
on the mythical South Pacific isle of Haleakolaha good escapist therapy for that steamed clam feeling.

Mr. Himself, Guns Donovan, is John Wayne, equally at home in yachting cap and levis as he usually is in chaps and six-shooter. Mr. Wayne busies himself with his customary diversions — rum, romance and earnestly slugging his buddy
Lee Marvin. Boats Gilhooley, that is!

Despite the uncomplicated story and the breezily unbelievable fantasy, the end result is both forceful and diverting. "Donovan's Reef" is not bad at all. More than that,
it's good, clean, bumptious fun,
and just the kind of movie we need to help us forget that Nassau Street is melting, it's too hot even to go swimming and that there's no relief in sight.

"DAMN YANKEES" ENDING

At Music Circus, "Damn Yankees," starring Wisa D'Or-
so, Dan Resin and Jack Goode, will end its week's engagement at Lambertville's Music Circus with the Sunday evening performance at 7:30. Two shows will be given Saturday, at 6 and 9:30, with the Thursday and Friday curtain at 8:30.

Miss D'Orso was a member of the "Mr. President" cast on Broadway where she played a belly dancer, among other roles. Robert Turoff is directing "Damn Yankees," and Edward Earle has staged the musical numbers. Settings are by Henry Yaeger.

"Irma La Douce" opens
Tuesday for a week's run, followed by "Paint Your Wagon" and "The Pajama Game." Reservations may be made by calling EX 7-1500 between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m.

DRY AND CLEAN
Two Dollars, Eight Pounds.
Going into competition with yourself is certainly the ultimate in Free Enterprise, and doing your own dry cleaning is about the ultimate in Do-It-Yourself.
Coin Wash, on Nassau Street behind Viking Furniture and east of Turney Motors, now has four self-service dry-cleaning machines. The parent corporation, Wash-O-Mat, across the street, will take in your dry cleaning. Fascinating. We were about to make a remark about a solvent business, but decided to refrain.

Well, anyway, the next time you take a bundle of laundry to Coin Wash, take a bundle of dry cleaning, too. You will find a gleaming bank of four front-load dry-cleaning "washers," each one equipped to take eight pounds of dry cleaning for $2. (A scale is in residence.)

You put in your garments and your eight quarters, and you set the machine for one of three cycles: nylon and synthetics; pants, dresses and suits; and heavy articles like

AND IT COMES OUT CLEAN: Dry-cleaning on a coin-wash basis is completely new to Princeton. David Cass (right) has the first Princeton installation in his Coin Wash on Nassau Street. Shown here with attendant Joey Lewis, Mr. Cass demonstrates the way a housewife will do her dry-cleaning in his new machine. Three of the four machines are visible in the picture. (Staff Photo)

draperies, winter coats, blankets and bedspreads.

The cycle runs for 25 to 40 minutes, depending on whether you are washing father's winter coat or half a dozen dacron and cotton dresses. When the cycle is complete, you take the clothes out of the machine, hang them up right there in the Coin Wash for a minute or two, and they're ready to put on.

The machines use exactly the same solvent used by about 95 percent of the commercial dry-cleaners, and the solvent is completely out of your garment by the time the cycle is over. The motion of the machine and the action of the solvent are such that wrinkles are not "washed in" as they often are in a regular washing process.

For example, if you dry clean a pair of men's slacks, the crease will still be intact when you remove the slacks from the machine. Whether you go home and do auxiliary pressing is up to you. If you like, you can leave the dress or suit at Wash-o-Mat to be pressed, or you can press it yourself on a commercial machine, assuming you have really professional ambitions.

Coin Wash suggests dry cleaning for the soft, casual kind of garments so many Princeton men and women wear: cotton dresses, blouses and shorts, for example, perhaps made of a polished cotton which would lose its lustre in washing, casual tweed sports jackets or flannel slacks with a soft finish—these come out very well indeed.

If you have spots, you may turn to the separate spotting table equipped with an all-purpose chemical spray to loosen water soluble spots so they will come out easily in the cleaning process.

And in case you run into a problem, you may turn to the attendant who will be on duty all the time to answer questions and give you the help you need. Looks simple enough to us without the attendant, but Coin Wash wants to make sure

In case you're doubtful about the kind of dry cleaning that weighs eight pounds, Coin Wash tells us that a man's winter coat weighs about four and one-half, and that several lightweight cottons can tip the scales to eight.

Coin Wash, about two and one-half years old, has plenty of parking in its Turney-Viking location. Wash-o-Mat, the parent across the street, has been in Princeton for 13 years.

One of the more interesting Broadway sights this fall will be Mary Martin reciting her lines while revolving head over heels on inventor Paul G. Eshleman's Yoga Wheel.

Mr. Eshleman, who lives at 561 Stockton Street, has been selling the gadget to such personages as Ben Gurion, Prince Ranier, Louis Marx the toymaker, and Mrs. Henry Ford, as well as to a variety of health-minded Californians. Now Miss Martin has joined the club.

The inventor says the Yo-circulation and relieve tension. This should make the current Boston try-outs of "Jennie" the calmest on record.

News Of The Theatres

for August will feature Duke Ellington next week, George Shearing on the 19th and Maynard Ferguson the 26th. For children, "All Baba and the Thieves" will be presented at 11 a.m. Saturday, August 17, and "Goldilocks and the Gorilla" is slated for a later date.

MUSICAL PLAYING

At Bucks Playhouse, "No Bed of Roses," a musical version of "The Fourposter," will continue at the Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, through Saturday, August 17. Walter Cassel and Gail Manners are the stars of the two-character show.

Martin Kalmanoff, who wrote songs, conducts the orchestra. Romney Brent is the director. Evening performances are given at 8:30, with the matinees on Wednesday and Saturday beginning at 2.

Ayn Rand's "Night of January 16th" follows "No Bed of Roses" on Monday, August 19,
for a two-week engagement.
Members of the audience will participate as jury in the courtroom drama. There are two endings to the play, depending on the jury's decision.

Jerome Cowan and Jack Pyle are starred in the production, and Ron Polan, Trenton disc jockey, is a featured player. "Night of January 16th," originally produced in 1935, is Miss Rand's only play.

The final offering of the season will be Jean Kerr's "King of Hearts," with an opening date of September 2. Henry Morgan, seen on television's
"I've Got A Secret," will make his first appearance at the New Hope theatre.

MUSIC FOR THE YOUNG

At Sundance Festival. Three
Saturday concerts for children will be given during August at the Sundance Festival of the Arts, Upper Black Eddy, Pennsylvania. In addition, Sundance will present the Claremont String Quartet this Saturday at 8:30 in an adult performance featuring a quartet by the American composer Quincy
Porter, who will be present.

The Claremont Quartet will play this Saturday at 10:30 a.m., performing early quartets written by Mozart when he was a child, and explaining to young members of the audience the mechanics of string instruments and the architecture of a string quartet. Questions from the floor will be welcome.

On Saturday, August 17,
three instrumentalists will play
a group of trio sonatas, exhibiting a rare "forte" piano like the ones used in Mozart's time.
This "forte" was built in England by Hugh Gough who will be on hand to show the boys and girls how it works, and how it differs from a standard pianoforte and a harpsichord,
which will be on display, too.
Instrumentalists for this concert will be Vladimir Weisman, violin; Daniel Abrams,
piano and Irving Klein, cello.

Marionette Opera. On the Labor Day weekend, starting Friday, August 30, at 8:30 p.m., Sundance will present two marionette operas by Frank Paris and his marionette troupe.

Haydn's rarely performed work, "Philemon and Baucis," discovered by musicologists within the last decade, will be given on a double bill with Mozart's familiar "Bastien and Bastienne." So rare is the Haydn that the Sundance producers had to send to Germany for a copy of the original manuscript because none were available in this country.

Music for these two marionette productions will be on stereo tape, with the "singspiel" songs and recitatives
done by members of the marionette troupe.

of one of the dress tartans — $3.49 a yard. A double-knit wool and a silk-and-wool tweed strike a contemporary note, and so does that big, squared off mohair plaid, in turquoise and kelly or golds and rust.

Forty colors in corduroy this fall, including things like raspberry, pale pink, steel blue and the like, and almost as many in the row of cotton velveteens: pale ice-blue, myrtle blue, emerald and white.

For school, college, or just for fall, you'll look at the deep colors in wool challis, especially effective in paisley prints, the dark dacron-and-cotton mixtures, and the batiks. Some of these batiks are as dark as anything we've seen in print, and dramatic in the way they pick up sudden highlights that show off the dark pattern. These are 98 cents a yard.

There's good fun for a beginning seamstress in the package skirt kits at the Fabric Center. Wool comes in skirt lengths with a strip for a belt, and cotton comes in four-yard batches, with a belt already made for you, $2.99 and $3.99, and sew it up any way you like.

McCall and Simplicity are the patterns. Pins and thread on the next counter.

MAD MOHAIR

From Italy, Mohair, or combinations of it with wool, has been used madly and extravagantly and deliciously in a new collection of sweaters, suits and at-home skirts now graciously accepting compliments at Bellows.

Made especially for Bellows in their own color choices,

Slip on a Turtle

Your old friend the turtle comes up time and again in conversations at Bellows about the new sweaters you'll be wearing this autumn.

Bellows' turtle is the Antron variety — 100 percent, in case you follow pedigree. It's a black, long-sleeved pullover with gentle little turn-over turtle neck, made of "antron," a slick, finely knit fabric which could probably be pulled through a ring, if you're the kind that pulls fabrics through rings.

You wear it under each of your fabulous Italian mohair sweaters, partly to give a smoother feel next to the skin than the actual mohair itself, partly to give the layered look that's so terribly suave this fall. The sweaters have wide necks which can accommodate the antron turtle without any trouble at all, and the additional fillip of style is indescribable.

these suits and sweaters combine flair and good taste with remarkable success. Begin, for example, with an A-line mohair skirt, knit on big needles, paired with a raglan cardigan embroidered with cranberry on forest green. ($75.)

Scrolls of olive embroidery festoon a deep lime-green sweater arranged on top of an olive knit skirt; leather piping on a Chanel cardigan enhances a three-piece suit with flat-knit skirt and over-blouse.

Italian flat knits feature a good many cap-sleeved blouses

DON'T CROSS A BRIDGE UNTIL YOU COME TO IT! Especially if it isn't there. The bridge in question is the one on The Great Road just north of Mountain Avenue, extracted late last week by county engineers. Until the new replacement bridge is ready, all motorists may use a by-pass, built by the county with county and Princeton Township funds on the west side of the place where the old bridge used to be.

as part of three-piece ensembles. One handsome ensemble in this category has taupe embroidery on beige.

Fascinating color in a royal-navy flat knit suit with feather-stitched squares on the jacket, two high on one side, two lower on the other, each square filled in with fat little circles of solid embroidery done in cherry, bronze and gold. They pop up again as a hand around the sleeve. In brown-gold orange, too.

Now, we move into the drawing room where we find the hostess in an ankle-length lined skirt woven, this time, of gold yarn, and embroidered with a long-stemmed deep rose flower that grows right up the front (and back) of the flaring skirt. A sweater matches precisely. It's a classic pullover.

e., zipped up the back to pre-serve your hair-do.
Tomorrow night, you can wear the same outfit, this time with a royal purple skirt and pale raspberry top. That same flower, in brilliant red-orange, grows right up from the hemline, $90 for the sweater-skirt combination.

Separate mohair sweaters will drive you out of your mind. Why not attach together diagonally knit panels of mohair in alternating cranberry, grey, teal and olive and finish the edges to make a striped sweater with a scalloped "petal" hemline and sleeve edge? Or run black velvet ribbon insertion at the top of flaring peplum and flaring cuffs on a bright pink mohair sweater knit in a stitch like an afghan? Why not embroider a big triangle on the front of a mohair so that its apex comes at the throat, and put inside the triangle, a flower standing on its head?

Most of these mohairs have wide scoop or V necklines just waiting for that black under-turtleneck we wore about in the box.

Conservatives will pick out the maize yellow with square neck, knit in alternating squares of garter and stocking-stitch, with a flower hand-embroidered in each square (Powder blue, also). Or the short-sleeved white sweater with raspberry and pink flowers on its yoke, raglan sleeves and a round neck. Beige and orange, too.

Lemon yellow mimosas have been embroidered around the edge of a shrimp pink sweater with a little turtle neck and quiet sleeves.

New to Bellows this year is a line of fake fur coats, the kind that keep the conservationists happy. Take that leopard, for instance. He was born in a laboratory right next to the seal, and how's that for ecology? The Bellows leopard, rampant, has a wide turn-over collar and a belt that can pull the coat in if you want to look like a spy. It's $90.

The seal, black and seductive, has silk knot buttons on its double-breasted front, and the Chinese kidskin, full length, has a straight, sophisticated cut.

There's a coat of mink gills, and an autumnal haze mink collar on a darker coat. All splendidly fake, and beautifully done. The top $135.

construction. This ordinance is primarily aimed at preventing the overhauling of properties on Nassau Street east of Vandewater. Public hearing on the ordinance will be held at the September 10th meeting.

● Heard read into the record a letter from Mayor Patterson, on behalf of himself and Council, to Dr. and Mrs. Howard S. Unangst deploring the "senseless and vicious attack" to which Dr. Unangst was subjected in Little Rorkey Hill last Sunday morning. Dr. Unangst, police surgeon and newly appointed Borough public schools physician, was brutally assaulted and repeatedly stabbed during the aftermath of a minor car accident.

● Heard Mayor Patterson praise Princeton Hospital for "the wonderful job it does for this community" and state that the number of emergency cases in the accident dispensary the night of the Unangst stabbing "clearly shows this as well as the need for an expanded hospital."

● Rejected again as too high all new bids received for Hodge Road sewer and curbing repair. New bids will be received up to 11 a.m. on August 20.

● Approved Mayor Patterson's nomination of Mrs. Catherine Wood, wife of Councilman Joseph R. Wood, to a five-year term as a member of the Borough Housing Authority.

● Accepted with regret the resignation of G. Vinton Duffield as a long-time member of the public library committee.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME

On Slate Road, The home of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Brooks, 561 Slate Road, was badly damaged by smoke and fire Sunday morning. The fire, first reported by a passing motorist at 7:45 a.m., apparently started as a result of spontaneous combustion in a bedroom closet, according to Fire Chief Samuel G. Davison. Five occupants of the house escaped uninjured.

Flames gutted the room in which the blaze started and did considerable damage to an adjacent bedroom. The rest of the interior of the one-story, brick house was badly affected by heat and smoke.

Five fire companies, three from Princeton, one from Rocky Hill and one from Blawenburg, responded. Despite the absence of hydrants in the area, the trucks carried enough water to put out the fire.

One Princeton fireman was injured in battling the blaze. Donald Hanley, 21, of 11 Pelham Street, a member of Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1, was overcome by smoke. He was treated at Princeton Hospital and released.

Final Concert Friday

Richard Gerstenberger will conduct the Community Band's final concert of the season Friday at 7 in front of Nassau Hall. The rain date is Monday.

The program will include a military march by Beethoven, Rossini's "Semiramide Overture," Handel's "Water Music Suite," William Schuman's "Chester Overture," selections from Gershwin and marches by Sousa and Herbert. Ronald Gall will play "Solo Pomposo" on the tuba.

The concert is open to the public without charge. The Band will also give a performance at 6 on Sunday at Johnson Park in Highland Park.

The five occupants of the house who escaped without injury are Mr. and Mrs. J. Del Vecchio of Rocky Hill, Mrs. Brooks' parents, and their three grandchildren, aged 5, 6 and 8. Mr. and Mrs. Del Vecchio were staying with the children while Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were on a two-day fishing trip at the shore.

Mrs. Del Vecchio said that she was not aware of the fire until her six-year-old grandson, Jimmy, went into his parents' bedroom and then ran out to tell her that the closet was on fire.

The Del Vecchios led the three children to safety and stopped the passing motorist who reported the fire to Township police. Mr. Brooks, a Nassau Oil Co. employee, and his wife returned home as soon as they were notified of the blaze.

U. S. ARCHIVE SAVED
By Princetonian. A letter written by the King of Siam in 1861 was almost given away last week by President Kennedy. Henry L. Koren, director of South East Asian Affairs at the State Department, reminded him it was an original document and, as a part of the National Archives, could not be given away under law.

The incident was reported by Marie Smith in The Washington Post. Mr. Koren, a native Princetonian, is the son of the late Prof. and Mrs. William Koren and graduated from Princeton in 1933.

The President thought he was giving Thailand's Prince Dhaninivat Kromamun Bidyalab a copy of the letter written by his great-great-grandfather, King Mongkut, to President James Buchanan. The document will now be copied for the Prince and his sister, Princess Sibpan Sonakul.

The State Department had borrowed the parchment attached to a thin layer of gauze from the Archives for the meeting. The letter, delivered to President Lincoln almost a year after its writing, offered aid to the United States in the form of elephants, and suggested this country send ships to Siam for several pairs.

In replying, President Lincoln pointed out that "our political jurisdiction, however, does not reach a latitude so low as to favor the multiplication of the elephants."

YOUR CARPET QUESTIONS

Please discuss continuous filament nylon carpet—Fireproof, Cat-Clawing proof, etc.

Continuous filament nylon at its inception was a good fiber and looked like a real consumer value. At a meeting we all went to before it was put on the market we were impressed by the things it would do. We were told of quality control, which meant so many ounces of yarn per square yard. This sounded like the best idea for the American consumer in a long time. Since then we still have good continuous filament nylon but we also have this same nylon labeled at $3.00 a yard. Let me say now that good continuous filament nylon carpet still costs between $7.95 and $10.95 a square yard. As for being fireproof, nylon will not support a flame.

SCHOOL CONTRACTS LET

For Riverside, Littlebrook. Construction contracts for the additions to Riverside and Littlebrook Schools were awarded by the Township Board of Education in a special meeting held last Tuesday.

The construction budget was $475,820. Awards totaled $465,441, leaving a balance of $10,379.

Low bidder for general construction was Kehoe-Downs, Inc. of Pennsauken, with a bid of $308,340. This is the firm that built Community Park School.

Other low bidders were Peter Stewart of Pleasantville, $32,106 for structural steel work; Philip S. Slack & Co. of Trenton with $35,990 for plumbing and drainage and $53,118 for heating and ventilation and N. W. Maul & Sons of Dayton with $35,887 for electrical work.

Boards of Education are required by law to accept the low bidders on construction contracts unless there has been serious financial loss or other serious malpractice on the part of a contractor.

DEAN W. CHACE NAMED

RCA Manager in Harrison, Dean W. Chace, 67 Leabrook Lane, has been named manager of administration at RCA's special electronic components division at Harrison. A member of the RCA organization since his graduation from Princeton in 1951, he had been senior technical administrator at RCA Laboratories since 1962.

The newly organized division will be responsible for directing and integrating programs in the fields of direct energy conversion, integrated circuits, micromodules, minimodules, "Minireed" switches, laser devices and ceramics.

In addition to his B.S. degree in engineering, Mr. Chace holds an LL.B. from Temple University, gained in 1955. He worked in various patent offices of RCA in Washington, D.C. and Camden before coming to Princeton in 1957 as a member of the patent department of the David Sarnoff Research Center.

Where There's Smoke . . .

There's fire, but on Monday evening the fire had a purpose.

It was also completely under control, with a couple of Princeton fire engines standing by. The wooden beams from demolished Upper Pyne Building on Nassau Street were being burned in the clearing on Route 206, just past the Mountain Avenue intersection.

The problem arose when a light breeze wafted the smoke toward the center of town, where it simply hung in a hazy blanket, and residents began to wonder about its source. Borough Police Chief Peter J. McCrohan reported that approximately 130 calls were received at Borough Hall from residents in town, inquiring about the smoke.

Of Concern to All.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In recent weeks the "Letters to the Editor" columns of TOWN TOPICS have reported that a family, who happen to be Negroes, have been denied the chance to obtain decent housing in Princeton. The ugly details of this event need not be repeated here.

When such an event occurs in a community, it should stir up the indignation of all of us. It is easy to sit back and believe that the particular course of events have nothing to do with our lives. It must concern us all, and reflect on us that Negroes in this community find it difficult to obtain decent housing, find employment opportunities, or even go swimming in a pool of water.

Michael Interview Approved.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As a parent, observing from the periphery, I wish to commend TOWN TOPICS for presenting the interview with Mr. Michael. It requires little more than casual observation to assess the wisdom of the Princeton Board of Education when they selected this man to be principal of one of the reputedly best high schools in the country.

Mr. Michael voiced his concern over a large segment of the school population whose needs have not been adequately met. He has spared no human effort to analyze what was happening in these students. He has welcomed parents and has enlisted their cooperation in tracking down the source of difficulties. He has accepted parents as partners in the educational process rather than intruders who pose a threat.

Mr. Michael has expressed faith in the achievements of the Guidance Department, a faith which is shared by parents, but there is no way to circumvent the essential element — guidance which begins in the classroom.

When the expressed philosophy of Mr. Michael permeates the entire school, there will be no lack of school pride, for each student will be aware that he is the focus for which the school exists.

Hibben Memorial Disapproved

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It seems to me that John Grier Hibben has been dishonored rather than honored by the naming of the Lakeside apartments for him (Town Topics 8-1-63). Fortunately, a memorial garden which reflects something of his quiet dignity has been dedicated to Mr. Hibben and was appropriately put beside the northern wall of the University Chapel.

Alas, we live in a Philistine age in which architecture and much else is dictated by the pragmatic, horrible in its empiricism.

YES, We Want Jobs

Youth Employment Service would like to say "Yes" to more of its teenaged registrants who call and wait for jobs each day. The young people aged 14 through 19 are available for a variety of work ranging from lawn mowing and babysitting to typing and store stock work.

Jobs such as window and car washing for the younger age group are particularly needed. Mothers' helpers who will go away with a family or work regularly in Princeton are registered at the YES office, 120 John Street.

Employers should call WA 4-5841 between 9 and noon Monday through Friday.

in injuries to several persons and admission to Princeton Hospital of two octogenarians.

Thomas Crawford and his wife, Margaret, both 81, of 217 Ewing Street, suffered fractured ribs on Wednesday, July 31, when the car Mr. Crawford was driving on Franklin Avenue collided with another operated by Charles Williamson Jr. of North Branch. The accident took place at the intersection of Franklin and Jefferson, and police will charge Mr. Crawford with failure to observe the stop sign there.

A similar accident occurred Friday at the intersection of Valley and Jefferson. John Thorkildsen, Sunset Road, RD 1, was struck by a car operated by Mrs. Elenore Hedden of Dover. Ulla and Ingrid Thorkildsen and Linda Hedden, passengers in the two cars, received minor injuries, and Mrs. Hedden received a summons for passing a stop sign.

On the same day, Miss Beverly A. Mershon, 34 Berrien Avenue, Princeton Junction, struck a car with Wilton S.

Tyler Jr., 37 Leigh Avenue, at the wheel while he was halted in line of traffic on Nassau Street. Miss Mershon and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Mershon, were slightly injured.

PRINCIPAL ACCEPTS

To Head Community Park, Eugene R. Biringer of East Brunswick has been elected principal of Community Park School, and will assume his new duties on August 15. He succeeds William Perkins who has left the Township school system for another post.

A man whose career has covered every aspect of elementary and secondary school administration, Mr. Biringer is a graduate of Rutgers Phi Beta Kappa, and is presently enrolled there as a candidate for the doctor's degree. He received his master's degree from Rutgers also.

He has been curriculum supervisor for elementary schools, principal of a large elementary school and principal of a four-year high school.

As a result of his work with curricula, he is familiar with the many new programs that have been developed during

Mr. Biringer is a trustee of the East Brunswick public library, an active member of the East Brunswick Concert Association and chairman of the building committee of his church. An Army veteran, he is a captain in the Army Reserve. The new principal is 36 years old, married and the father of three children.

"AS FULL OF THE JOY OF LIVING AS POSSIBLE." That's the way Mrs. Edwin W. Kemmerer (above) describes her papillons. With her is Ch. Yes-Sah of Samhro, receiving his best-of-breed award at the Progressive Dog Show in Brooklyn. The playful little papillons are "very intelligent and naturally obedient," she says. "They have the greatest desire to please you."

EVERY OUNCE A WINNER

Champion Dogs Bred Here

A four-legged bit of fluff — fighting weight about three pounds — sat motionless next to a Great Dane in the judging ring. The crowd was hushed, the judges gimlet-eyed as the dogs endured the difficult "long stay." The owners and handlers were out of sight.

Suddenly, the Great Dane's curiosity got the better of his training. He gave the fluff a sharp prod, tossing her off balance. The little papillon pulled herself together only to get poked harder.

Little Sequin of Dulceda, with incredible dignity, carefully moved out of his range, sat down, and ignored him.

"You could just hear the crowd let go of its breath," says her breeder, Mrs. Edwin W. Kemmerer of 161 Elm Road, who is about as amused and delighted by papillons as anyone could be.

Sequin won 193 out of 200 possible points. She is one of more than 50 champion papillons credited to Mrs. Kemmerer.

Charmed at First Sight. "The first time I saw papillons in the ring, more than 25 years ago, I said, 'This is it!' They charm me. I like them for their beauty . . . they're rare, full of personality. No two are alike in their ways," Mrs. Kemmerer warms quickly to her favorite subject.

"My husband, imagine — a staid professor, loved the papillons. At times, I've had as many as 30 in the kennels. He used to play little games with them — hide a handkerchief in his pocket and they'd ferret it out."

Her late husband, called informally "the money doctor," was an internationally recognized economist. A professor at Princeton University from 1912 to 1943, he was often on leave at the request of the State Department which sent him to 14 foreign countries to oversee the shoring up of shaky national economies.

"One year, he told me he'd like a papillon for Christmas. I said, 'What! With all we have?' But he told me, 'I'd like one of my own.' So, at Christmas, I tied a red ribbon around wonderful little 'Bomby' and presented him.

Best of Breed. "The first year my husband entered Bomby in the Westminster Show in New York, a stranger came over and told us that Bomby was 'the most beautiful thing I've ever seen in the skin of a dog.' Bomby won best-of-breed twice at Westminster. He lived after my husband died. In fact, he was 17 years old when I had to put him to sleep."

The fluffy, long-haired papillon, whose weight ranges between three and five pounds, "has always been the dog of royalty," Mrs. Kemmerer says. "The ancestry is controversial. The Belgians claim the papillon stems from the toy spaniel deluxe."

The early dogs had floppy or "drop" ears. Somewhere along the line, a breeder introduced a variety with erect, long-fringed ears which give a butterfly wings appearance to the head. In fact, according to Mrs. Kemmerer, it was Marie Antoinette who named them through her exclamation, "My petite papillon!" when one was presented to her. The "butterfly" ears are Mrs. Kemmerer's specialty as a breeder.

Strangely enough, it was a pint-size maltese that led Mrs. Kemmerer into papillon breeding. She was in the Philippines with her husband just after they were married when she noticed a frisky little Maltese, white as snow, guarding a harness shop. Shortly after, she received a six-weeks-old maltese "just big enough to fit in my hand!"

Behind the Name. "We named her 'Dulce,' and when my son Donald was learning to talk, everything white was 'dulce' to him. In fact, my kennel, 'Dulceda' is partly named for her.

"When Donald was very little, his word for water was 'da' and, one snowy day as he noticed the snow strike the window and turn to water, he shouted to me, 'See dulce da! See the white water! We combined this for my kennel name and changed the pronunciation to 'Dul-CEEDa.'"

Dulce lived to be 12½ years old and Mrs. Kemmerer acquired a miniature pincher. "It was a fine specimen. It took reserve winner the first time in the ring. But all miniatures are very saucy. They won't take any back talk and, one day, our doberman killed the miniature.

"My husband said, 'Rachael, get another miniature right away!' But I waited, because I remembered the enchanting papillons I'd seen at a show not long before.

"I found an elderly, and proper, Bostonian who imported papillons from England. Through her, in 1937, I received my first dog, 'Djimy of Offley,' the son of an international champion. He's the ancestor of many papillons now showing in the ring."

A 3½-Pound Champion. Later Mrs. Kemmerer acquired the "fabulous" Chiquita. "She only weighed three-and-a-half pounds. I hadn't had her in my arms more than five minutes when I knew I wanted her.

"She had the most wonderful personality. The judges were enthusiastic about her; she won her championship in no time."

As Chiquita was too small to breed, Mrs. Kemmerer obtained her sister, Lorette. "Lorette and Djimy were the beginning of my breeding. I have imported more than 20 dogs and have shipped Dulceda dogs all over the United States and Canada. Three of the dogs I imported from England were on a ship carrying refugee children that was torpedoed."

One of her dogs very nearly went to the White House. A friend suggested that two papillons be given to Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, and Mrs. Kemmerer offered to donate one of them. "Mrs. Eisenhower wrote the sweetest letter, saying how much she'd like to have the dogs, but she didn't feel they'd get the proper care, as the family was away so much."

Watch Dogs, Too. As Mrs. Kemmerer went out to the kennels, she was greeted by a chorus of shrill barking. "They're wonderful as watch dogs. Some years ago, every house on Hodge Road was entered but ours — and our little dogs barked from 11 p.m. until 3 a.m.

"Little Lisa here guards me constantly. She likes to lie against my shoulder, and the other day when my daughter Ruth leaned over to kiss me goodbye, Lisa barked severely at her." She laughed. "Ruth told her, 'I'm tired of your barking at me!'"

Mrs. Kemmerer has sold a great many dogs for children. "They're great pets. I try to select the dog that will suit the child's personality. I give a shy dog to a quiet child, or one of the larger dogs to an active child."

She says that the tiny papillon is a hunter. "I remember seeing our Jan crouching, still as a cat, in our garage. Just watching, waiting. The next morning he had two dead mice for me."

"A friend of mine, who lives deep in the country, was terribly worried one day when her little papillon didn't come when she called. These dogs are very quick to respond. "Suddenly her dog came panting up to her and laid a rat as big as she was at her mistress's feet. She raced off and brought back another! And there's a papillon in Eng-

Pint-Size Guardians. She picked up and introduced her pint-size guardians. "This is Lisa, and Janet, Empress, Angeliq, Jan, Luster, Biddy, little old Yvette, Altair, Anya, Litany and Old Sparkle." The vivacious little creatures stilled as she held them briefly one by one.

"These dogs are really very strong for their size. There's one in the yard that is 15 years old, another is 13." The care she gives them is the full treatment, ranging from special kennel diets and vitamins to Lustre Creame shampoos. One of her papillons, Yvain of Dulceda, has won 24 best-of-breed awards.

"I have made so many, many friends since I started with my little papillons," Mrs. Kemmerer went on thoughtfully. "You know, I went abroad 13 years ago with a friend and we spent our time at museums, old estates — and going to dog shows." She laughed. "Three years ago, I went over again with another friend, Mrs. Christian Gaus, and we had the same objective!"

She served as president of the Papillon Club of America for six years and carries on a busy correspondence with friends in England, France and Belgium.

Picking up little Lisa who was begging for attention, she said, "My kennel is down to 12 dogs now, and I haven't been active because of the operation for cataracts on my eyes. I'll be 87 next January, so I'm pretty nearly ready to retire . . . unless I get someone to show for me, and I don't like the idea of that." Her face shadowed for a moment. "I've never had a handler."

teachers of French and German who graduated this week from an intensive six-weeks' course in language study at Princeton University's Summer Institute.

The purpose of the Institute is to give teachers a chance to increase their linguistic proficiency, and also their understanding of foreign cultures.

During the six weeks, which ended Wednesday, teachers concentrated on spoken language, communicating with each other only in the language of their particular choice. In addition, they discussed with one another the various problems they had encountered in language teaching, received 25 to 30 hours of formal instruction each week.

Modern audio-visual equipment in the University's language laboratory was made available to the teacher-students also.

Fast Talk. Teachers who are accepted by the Institute must be able to follow closely and easily all kinds of standard speech, including rapid-fire conversation and group discussion. They must be able to understand dialogue in plays and motion pictures, and have enough fluency to approximate native speech in vocabulary, intonation and pronunciation.

Princeton's Institute was organized in cooperation with the U.S. Office of Education's Language Development Program under the National Defense Education Act. It is one of four Institutes to be classified "Number One."

Mrs. Joan H. Lifland of Kendall Park, French teacher at Irvington High School, was one of those who participated.

NEW OFFICERS NAMED

By World Federalists. The Princeton Chapter of the United World Federalists elected officers for the coming year at its annual meeting, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Woodbridge, Carter Road.

They are: Harland W. Hoisington Jr., chairman; Peter B. Putnam, vice-chairman; Mrs. Jean Henderson, secretary; and Mrs. Woodbridge, treasurer. Members discussed the nuclear test ban treaty following a talk by Herbert Weinstein of Maplewood on "Some Practical Aspects on Working for World Federation."

PICNIC IN THE GROVE

Sunday at Sportsmen's Club. The 15th annual picnic of the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club will be held this Sunday from 1 to 8 p.m., with music from 4 to 8. The public is invited to the new picnic grove on the club's grounds on Terhune Road.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2 for children, with children under 8 admitted free. Food and drink will be available all afternoon and evening, and the ticket price includes "all you can eat."

DIRECTOR NAMED

By Watersheds Association. Richard S. Thorsell has been appointed resource director of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association, and will move from Dover to the Hopewell area in the near future.

The announcement was made by Paul M. VanWegen, Association president. Mr. Thorsell gained a degree in conservation from Lehigh University in 1953, and has worked with Allied Chemical as a research chemist. Much of his spare time has been devoted to Wildlife Preserves, Inc.

ANNIVERSARY MARKED

By River Road Pool. The tenth anniversary of the River Road Pool, Rocky Hill, was observed last week with an aquatic show. Over 20,000 young people have used the pool during the past decade, courtesy of Linus R. Gilbert, president of Kingston Trap Rock Company.

Ed Nystrom and Andy Kulley gave a life saving exhibition, and a performance of synchronized swimming was presented under the direction of Marilyn Harms. Participating were Allison Hosford, Peggy Hosford, Heidi Hoffman, Carol Olsen, Carol Crovetto and Darlene Pinter. Lessons will continue on Tuesday from 12 to 1 for all girls interested in this activity.

Mark Hoffman gave a diving exhibition in various races, first place ribbons were awarded to Marlene Runtig, Allison Fickes, Eve Hosford, Diane Smith, Susan Clahossey, Heidi Hoffman, Susan Lemore, Carol Olsen, Donald Talerick.

Also, Peter Hoffman, Jack Petrone, Larry Arecco, Paul Hoffman, Reed Smith, Dan Goldman, Andy Sikes, Mark Hoffman, and Andy Kulley.

PEDDIE BREAKS GROUND

For Science Building. Ground-breaking ceremonies have been held at Peddie School, Hightstown, for its science building, valued at $750,000. It is the fifth major building undertaken by the school in the last 12 years. Facilities include a planetarium, special laboratories for advanced students, rooms for the study of earth science and astronomy, a 125-seat lecture hall as well as classrooms and laboratories.

Representing the Board of Corporators on the occasion was Foster D. Jamison, 631 Lake Drive, Joseph G. Bradshaw, 47 Locust Lane, represented the Alumni Association. Mr. Jamison is a member of the class of 1920, and Mr. Bradshaw graduated in 1936.

FOR MERITORIOUS SERVICE: Chester A. Steen of Plainsboro receives a "three-gallon" blood donor pin in recognition of his gift of a 21th pint of blood to the Princeton Blood Donor Service. Presenting the award to Mr. Steen is Mrs. Geoffrey E. Sage, executive director of the Princeton Red Cross chapter, co-sponsor with Princeton Hospital of the service. Mr. Steen, an active member of the program since March 1950, is the first donor in the program to reach the three-gallon mark. Story, this page.

Topics Of The Town
The science building is the first unit to be constructed in the school's centennial development program and is scheduled for completion in September 1963. It is being built by the John McShain Construction Company, and was designed by LaPierre and Litchfield Associates.

21 PINTS OF BLOOD
By Princeton Area Donor. With the scheduling of the first donor who has contributed three gallons of blood to the free program, the Princeton Blood Donor Service again set a record in its 14 years of service to the community. The donor is Chester A. Steen, vice president of Walker-Gordon Laboratories in Plainsboro. Mr. Steen has been a contributor to the blood donor service since March 23, 1950, only four months after its establishment. He made his 24th donation on July 22.

Members of the staff of the Princeton chapter of the Red Cross and of the Princeton Hospital, sponsoring agencies of the unique program were on hand to congratulate Mr. Steen for his unusual record of service. Mrs. Geoffrey E. Sage, executive director of the Princeton Red Cross chapter and one of the program's founders, presented Mr. Steen with a "three-gallon" pin in recognition of "his loyalty to his fellow man."

Mr. Steen attributes his original and continuing interest in the program to an event a number of years ago, before Princeton's donor service was started. At that time, Mr. Steen's son needed transfusions, and it was necessary to hunt far and wide for a donor with the same blood type.

This incident made Mr. Steen well aware of the need for having donors available and willing to meet the community's needs. "I have never refused to give," Mr. Steen says, "because I know that I am only called when I am really needed, and I know from personal experience how essential the Princeton donor service is in a critical situation."

Mr. Steen also took the opportunity to urge others to join and support the program as volunteer donors. He stressed the need for young members of the community and newcomers in the area to know the value of the service and to participate whenever possible.

Since its inception in December 1949, the Princeton donor service has met every need for blood for patients in Princeton Hospital through its volunteer donors. During the first six months of 1963, 688 donations were required to "meet the need."

Princeton is the only community in the country known to have a free blood donor service for all of the patients in its hospital. To join the volunteer organization, which last year contributed a record high of 1,534 necessary pints of blood to Princeton Hospital's patients, telephone the Princeton chapter, American Red Cross, WA 4-2404.

RAHR IS NAMED
To Schools Committee Post. David G. Rahr of Faculty Road has been appointed as Secretary of the Schools Committee of Princeton University's National Alumni Association. Dean of the College J. Merrill Knapp has announced. Mr. Rahr, now Assistant Director of Admission, succeeds Joseph L. Bulster Jr., who is resigning to join the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Mr. Rahr, a native of Oak Park, Ill., joined the administration directly upon his graduation from Princeton in 1960 as Assistant to the Director of Admission, and was promoted to Assistant Director of Admission in 1962. In his new post, he will be responsible for maintaining liaison with secondary schools, and between the Office of Admission and more than 1,300 alumni associated with some 141 regional committees.

The committees keep in close touch with secondary schools, in interviewing and advising applicants for Princeton each year. Such committees are active in Canada, Hawaii, and South America, as well as in all parts of this country.

TEST BAN SUPPORTED
In Sen. Williams' Mail. Senator Harrison A. Williams (D-N.J.) has stated he believes the Senate will approve the proposed test ban treaty with Russia. He has received a few wires expressing opposition to any kind of treaty with the Soviet Union, although his mail constituents favors the agreement five to one.

The Senator noted the Joint Chiefs of Staff were opposed to the banning of atmospheric tests with some qualifications in testimony before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee a few weeks ago, and that "much may depend on the attitudes of the military and the Joint Chiefs" in determining the degree of opposition.

Although these men have indicated a change in position, Mr. Williams commented, "The chiefs could have substantial influence in molding public and Senate attitudes on the issue." He expressed "concern over the apparent single-mindedness of the military mind" for assuming that the nation's security can only be protected through a continuation of nuclear testing and of the arms race.

The Senator feels it is significant that "no formidable Congressional opposition to the treaty has been expressed so far," with Senate reactions ranging from enthusiastic to cautious.

"It would be in our national interest to freeze testing by both sides at the present stage in development," Mr. Williams said. "If we are ahead in the field of nuclear weapons, as is generally believed," He marked for attention the treaty provision that any nation could withdraw on three months' notice if it "decided that extraordinary events have jeopardized its supreme interests."

TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALL GAME: This 1923 Packard Phaeton Straight-Eight, owned by George H. Gallup III, will participate in the stately procession of vintage and antique automobiles before the annual Old-Timers' baseball classic at Clarke Field this Friday evening at 6:15. For further information on the event, see story on page 25.

The other advantages of the treaty arc, according to the Senator, the "psychological breakthrough" hopelessly leading to more substantial agreements, the reduction of fallout and the possibility of curbing the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

In commenting on the final United States and Russia must make every effort to get all nations to agree to the treaty for if a country like Red China starts testing, this treaty will be very short-lived indeed.

BUS LEAVING

For Washington. Ten men and women met Monday evening to set Tiger Line buses on the road August 28 for the civil rights "March on Washington."

The executive committee of the Princeton Group for Human Rights, which gathered at the home of Henry N. Drewey, included Malcolm Diamond, professor of religion at Princeton University; the Rev. Albert S. Tyson, Jr., pastor of Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church; Leighton Laughlin, Thomas Caldwell, Mrs. Alfred Karney, Mrs. Emma Epps, Mrs. Elizabeth Chandler, Irving Newlin and Mrs. Geraldine Boone.

"This is not a southern or northern problem," Mr. Drewey and Mr. Diamond said in announcing the plans. "Nor is it a Negro or white problem, but rather a national and human problem in which people from every community in the nation have a stake."

They added, "It is important that those congressmen whose votes will be needed to terminate the probable filibuster by southern congressmen... and whose constituencies include very few Negroes, observe the extent to which the civil rights issue is a national problem about which citizens from all over the country feel deeply."

Coordinators. The Human Rights group will combine the efforts of all interested civic, religious and service organizations. It has chartered three 40-passenger Tiger Line buses which will leave at 6 a.m. Wednesday, August 28, from the Princeton Shopping Center parking lot on the Harrison Street side of campus.

The Rev. Mr. Tyson, assigned to get in touch with ministers here, reports that, so far, "What I have contacted with work to help make this a good representation from Princeton." He noted that some communities plan to send as many as 40 buses to Washington.

Mrs. Loren Johnston of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom says that her group is interested in the coming March, adding that so many participants are expected by the national organizers in New York City, "that probably two simultaneous walks will be held in Washington."

Rabbi Everett Gendler of the Princeton Jewish Center, service chairman of the civil rights action committee appointed by the Rabbinical Assembly, is assisting Princeton efforts as well as organizing a group of rabbis to knock on congressional doors.

He noted that the National Council of Churches "is organizing a large task force," and that the National Catholic Welfare Conference is also participating.

"August 28, 1963," the Human Rights group state, "may well be one of the most important dates in American history."

The coordinators refer inquiries to Mr. Diamond, WA 1-7047; Thomas Caldwell, WA 4-3581; Mrs. Elizabeth Chandler WA 4-5449, or the Rev. Rowland Cox, WA 1-6347.

FOUR ARE FINED

In Borough Court, Magistrate Theodore T. Tams levied fines against four Princeton residents in Magistrate's Court Monday night. Peter Oppenheimer, 22, of 97 Olden Lane was fined a total of $25 on two counts, one for operating a vehicle without a driver's license, and the other for having no taillight.

In other violations, Hugh C. Cunningham, 32, Port Mercer Road, paid $16 for speeding; Richard J. Provenzo, 18, 42 Carnahan Place, paid $27 for speeding, and Stuart Kasdan, 23, 47 University Place, paid $17 for speeding. All pleaded guilty.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK — II

(This is the second of a series of four articles on Princeton's football prospects for 1963.)

Sophomores Are Promising. Clear indication of how difficult it is for a sophomore to earn a starting position on the Princeton varsity is the fact that whereas the Class of 1965 was one of the strongest freshman teams in years, not one of its members held a regular berth on the Tiger eleven last fall.

The fact that there were only four vacancies created by graduation was primarily responsible for such a situation. A contributing factor, too, was the coaching philosophy here that if a junior or a senior have approximately equal ability with a sophomore, the job goes to the player with the greater experience.

This fall, there are eight positions to be filled as a result of graduation, but again, hold-over strength is sufficient so that a letterman is available for every one of them. The upcoming sophomores figure to provide welcome reserve strength, but with a single exception, the Class of 1966 is unlikely to be represented when the whistle blows for the Rutgers kickoff on September 28.

The player who may break into the lineup has two factors working for him: his own ability and the lack of well-rounded manpower ahead of him. Princeton badly needs a two-way center, and he may be about to arrive in the person of 195-lb. Kit Mill.

He Knows Single-Wing. T football bring the rage it is in

A YEAR TO LEARN: Ernie Pascarella, 215-lb. tackle, is typical of the sophomores who spend much of their time on the bench the first season but figure to fit largely into the picture in their junior and senior years. Although he saw action in only 179 plays—about 15% of the action last fall—Pascarella was considered good enough to win his letter.

AFTER ONE YEAR AT A NEW POSITION: Bill Guedel sat out his sophomore year through ineligibility, and last fall was switched from guard to tackle. This season, he'll captain the Princeton football team. He and Coach Dick Colman will lead a squad of more than 70 players to Blirstown on September 1 for pre-season practice.

school football, Princeton can comb through 100 freshman prospects without finding a center with single-wing experience. Coach Pep McCarthy got one last year in Mill, a three-sport athlete at John Burroughs School in Webster Groves, Mo., and his contributions last fall were good enough so that the varsity coaching staff is hopeful that he may become the Tigers' first two-way center since Frank Savetec graduated three years ago.

Mill must prove superior to letterman Bill Crano, 195-lb. senior, on offense, but already has an edge on him as the potential starter in that Crano does not measure up as line-backer. Bob Burrus, who held that position as defensive center last fall, has graduated.

By positions, these are the other sophomores whose names may make news during the course of the 1963 season. Some have potential as great as Mill's but will run into lettermen who are more firmly entrenched at their positions.

Ends: John Cashdollar (6-3, 210); Bob Haarlow (6-2, 190); and Dick Palicki (6-1, 185) are the three top bets, with their presence and more good holdovers at end than in the last couple of years making this one of the better fortified positions on the team. The availability of two lettermen at each end position will make the emergence of a sophomore unusual, but both Haarlow (who plans a quick switch to basketball in November) and Cashdollar should be heard from before mid-season.

Tackles: Again, varsity strength will make benchwarmers of the best pair of sophomore tackles when the opening whistle sounds but one or both could be regulars by the 1964 season. Both Stan Maliszewski and Paul Savidge weigh 215, both were freshman starters and are considered far above average in ability. Savidge is a Hun School alumnus and lives in Lambertville.

Guards: In contrast to last fall, when three of the top sophomore prospects were guards, only one currently appears to be immediate varsity material. He is Krist Jake, a squarely-built 195-lb. resident of Berea, O., whose durability and agility will be useful this fall.

Backs: One wingback, two fullbacks. Pick of the lot is probably Bert Kerstetter, 5-11, 185, who figures to earn the job of chief replacement for fullback Cosmo Iacavazzi. A good ball carrier and blocker, he'll have solid competition from classmate Clint Johnson.

J.D. Askew, the principal freshman tailback last fall despite his 165-lb. size, and Bob Bedell, a 195-pounder who was slowed by injuries, are the principal bets for four-back slot in the single-wing offense. With three lettermen ahead of them, the way up the ladder may be slow but Askew could jump a notch or two.

The wingback will be a mighty welcome addition as a specialist. He is 165-lb. Charlie Gogolak, who, like his brother Pete at Cornell, place kicks with his instep and is blessed with extreme accuracy. In the tight ones, the pat's and an occasional field goal make all the difference.

instructor and organizer in the summer tennis program here.

Shawn Tully of Princeton won the other boys' title, not one of the three losing a set to their opponents. Gretchen Taylor of Princeton was the fourth victor from this community, winning the title open to 16-year old girls.

Tully, ranked third in the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association, hammered Neil Curtis of Bethlehem, Pa., into submission in the finals for 16-year old boys. Greater experience and polish enabled him to triumph with ease, 6-2, 6-1.

Ken Kraft was the winner in the 14-year old bracket, conquering Sonny Zasowski of Trenton with the loss of only two games in the second set. The winner's passing drives told much of the story.

Steve Kraft was even tougher to handle in the 12-year old final, defeating Mark Lane of Titusville in two love sets. His poise was considerable for one his age.

Miss Taylor dropped the first set, 2-6, to Adrienne Willis of Ridgewood, encountering difficulty with her opponent's cross-court shots and good service. However, she bounced back immediately to take the second set, 6-1, and then outduelled her opponent in a hard-fought third set, 7-5.

Girls' championships in the 14 and 12-year old divisions went to two Bethlehem girls, Linda Melloy and Linda Rupert. However, Princeton also had more of its share in the consolation rounds.

Winners included three boys — Dan Hutner, 16 and under; John Valentine, 14 and under; Bill Liederman, 12 and under, and Denys Oberman, 14 and under, girls.

PBA LEAGUE TIED

No. 1 and No. 3 Deadlocked. Last week was Firemen's Week in the Police Baseball League as teams representing Engine Co. No. 1 and No. 3 came down the backstretch in a first-place tie. If all potential deadlocks are resolved in time, playoffs will begin Monday on Pardee Field.

The contest which was largely responsible for the tie was No. 1's victory over No. 3, personally engineered by Tim Rollings. As the winning pitcher, he yielded only two hits and then doubled that output himself at the plate.

No. 1's other triumph was scored over last-place Hook and Ladder. That was a 13-6 final.

Engine Co. No. 3 split for the week with an 8-4 victory over the Eagles. Bob O'Connor and Gary McCleary provided the key blows which snapped a 4-4 tie in the fifth, while Eagle pitching helped the winners by providing 13 bases on balls.

The Eagles also lost a 13-6 decision to the Elks. The twin defeats dropped them from a first-place tie with Engine Co. No. 3 to third place, but they are still assured of a playoff berth.

In other games, Hook and Ladder ended its long (11-game) string of defeats by upsetting the Lions, 7 to 6. It was the fire company's first triumph of the season.

John Rosso's homer brought Hook and Ladder even in the fifth at 6-all. Jackie Petrone's triple with a man aboard then provided the winning margin in the final inning.

The Elks' raised their percentage from .300 to .417 with a pair of victories, trimming the Sportsmen, 9-3, in addition to their victory over the Eagles. Pat Corvino's eight-round homer made the difference, while Dick Embley homered for the losers.

As EMR Finishes First. The Business Softball League will begin playoffs under the Shaughnessy system next week to determine the 1963 champion. Electro-Mechanical Research began the current week assured of first place, while the possibility of a second-place tie existed between ETS and RCA.

Four other teams — Accelerator, Columbian Carbon, ERC and American Cyanamid — all had a shot at the remaining playoff berth in the tightly-bunched standings. When the outcome is unraveled, the first and third-place finishers and the teams in second and fourth place will meet in best of-

Three semifinal rounds. The victors will then stage a best-of-three championship final for the TOWN TOPICS silver bowl.

RCA won the trophy last year, defeating ETS, which finished the regular season in first place. The bowl will be retired by the first team to win it three times.

Last week's victors were Educational Testing twice, once on a forfeit over Scientific Electronics; RCA, Columbian Carbon and American Cyanamid. The latter lost a second game but remained in the running for a possible playoff spot.

ETS trounced Engineering Research, 12 to 4, as Jack Dilworth won another. He took a 12-1 lead into the last inning before he was touched for home runs by Bob Easton and Dan Brobst. Bob Ochule was three-for-three in a losing cause.

ETS rolled to an early lead, collecting 11 runs on 15 hits in the first three innings. The big guns were Al Myers (five-for-five), Dom Glovinazza (four-for-five) and Chuck Schullz (three-for-four).

Princeton Hospital dropped its 14th in a row, after having won its opener, when it absorbed a 27-10 pasting from Columbian Carbon. Dan Waltz was the winning pitcher, despite yielding 10 runs in five innings. Ted Cader worked the last two rounds in scoreless fashion, the victors adding another 11 tallies to their total. Alex Golumbeski with four hits in four at bats; John Bartolino, four-for-five; and George Howie, three-for-four, were the big hitters.

American Cyanamid blasted Scientific Electronics, 15 to 1, behind Bill Biache, with Spence Carter contributing a three-run homer and Ray Cervera a four-for-four performance. Two days later, however, Cyanamid dropped an 11-9 decision to RCA as Art Hahn outlasted Biache on the mound.

Slays Unhealed in Softball. The respective streaks being compiled by Thorne's and Engineering Research in the Girls' Softball League were lengthened last week. Each was stretched as Thorne's defeated ERC, 28 to 8, thereby raising its mark to 8-0 and lowering the losers to 0-9.

Bee Baker was the winning pitcher, with Dot Voorhees taking the loss. Pat Downing and Carole Rainey hit home runs for Thorne's, with Bobbie Burenga collecting a triple and Alba Gatti a double for the losers.

The Hospital and the Warriors' contest was postponed, and the latter also have a game with Thorne's to make up. The standings.

More than half this figure were released between April 15 and June 14, while the remainder were stocked prior to the opening of the trout season on April 6.

The Charles O. Hayford State Fish Hatchery in Hackensack produced more than 500,000 of the trout, and the remainder, all rainbows, were brought from National Fish Hatcheries in Pittsford, Vt. and Leesport, W. Va. Additional fish from these sources, consisting of 24,000 brown trout and some 9,000 rainbows were held over for stocking next year when they will have

The recommendations call for 14 fast-dry courts, six all-weather courts, a sprinkler system, fencing, a practice wall and water fountains, for a total cost of $88,190. Freeholder Richard J. Coffee said that since the commission now has $85,000 available, but feels that a 14-court center will probably be the maximum possible for that sum. He noted that the final decision as to the location of the center will be up to the park commission. Freeholder Coffee also said

NEW JERSEY ...has 78 airports!

New Jersey is a leader in air transportation. Seventy eight airports and thirty one heliports, including public and military fields, help to maintain New Jersey's reputation as a center of world transportation.

Newark Airport alone served nearly 3 million commercial air travellers last year. At the same time, 122 million pounds of air cargo passed through Newark Airport's new air cargo center. Air mail traffic jumped more than 13 per cent to a new all-time high of 24 million pounds.

Another one of the state's busiest airports, Teterboro, handled more than 200 thousand take-offs and landings last year. Teterboro, in northern New Jersey, is one of the nation's major business and private airports.

Air transport facilities like these help to prove that you can't find a better spot than New Jersey to serve the markets of the nation and the world.

that the commission had hoped to be able to have the courts ready for play by next summer, but this now appears unlikely. Courts should be installed in the fall and allowed to settle over the winter months. Thus, since it is unlikely that the commission will be able to begin constructing this fall, the project may not be completed until the Spring of 1965, he added.

WATER CO. LEADS

In First Place Alone. The tie which existed last week in the YMCA Junior Baseball League has been broken in favor of the Princeton Water Co., which now leads by a single point over Matthews Construction.

The pace-setters have 38 points, but have played one more game than Matthews, which holds down second place with 37. Nassau Oil began the week with 29 and an outside chance of catching up if it wins its next three games. Bowers was still looking for its first victory after ten defeats.

The standings:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Water Co.	6	2	2	38
Matthews	7	2	0	37
Nassau Oil	4	3	2	29
Bowers	0	10	0	10

OLD TIMERS READY...

As They Ever Will Be. The annual Old Timers Baseball Game will be played Friday evening at 6:15 on Clarke Field, east of Palmer Stadium. There will be no admission charge, no stands, no guarantee of the length of the game — but the occasion is a surefire bet for an evening's entertainment.

Ancient automobiles will provide transportation to the game for ancient players. The latter are asked to be at Palmer Stadium by 6 o'clock; the former are expected to make the run successfully, thus taking the pressure off the vintage players.

Jim Hogarty, who played more than two decades of baseball for Princeton and Trenton starting in 1912, is chairman of the committee rounding up the old cars and former stars. "Dean" of the latter will be Buff Skillman, who first played baseball for the Princeton town team in 1906.

Others expected to be on hand for the occasion will be Charles "Polly" Stryker, catcher for the Johnstown, Pa., team in the old Tri-State League in 1909-10 and later active here; Frank Hogarty, a member of the original Princeton Athletic Club before and after World War I; Edward A. MacMillan, who played for Princeton University and the PAC from 1912-14; Walter Lewis, a member of the Patriotic Sons of America lodge team in 1914 and '15; and Bill Madden, who played for the PAC in 1915 and '16.

Remember When? From the decade of the 1920's, players expected to be present for the occasion are Johnny Servis, Leonard "Beanie" Kraus, Bill Geddes, Ray Watts, Charlie Muth and Eddie Kopp. The following decade will be represented by Nick Ross, Jim Shorten, Don Coffee, Roger Yard, Joe Friel and Jim Samuels.

Samuels is billed as the opening pitcher for the Old Timers, while Yard will return to his old position on first base. Advance publicity for the contest, prepared by former commissioner B.E. Bergesen Jr., suggests, "come early — no one knows how long these two will last."

Other Old Timers who have agreed to risk life and limb in the annual Charleyhorse Classic include manager Jack Petrone, Tom Brophy, Johnny Ellsworth, Dick Coffee, Johnny Cuomo, Joe Friel, Don Odycke, Jack Sweeney, Bob Kehoe, Jim Brown, Jim Carter, Bucky Cupples, Jim Kabin, Van Skillman, Jim Koplin, Bill Gordon, Vern Kline, Charlie Perpetua, Warren Huff, George Sickle and Bus Simonson.

Tom Petrone will manage the current generation of ball players, most of them recent graduates of Princeton High School. His lineup will include Gary Grover, Ray Cranston, FAMILY AFFAIR: Tommy Petrone (left), now a member of the Gettysburg College baseball team, and brother Jack, who has played much hard and softball for Princeton teams, will manage the respective contestants in the annual Old Timers' Game Friday.

Bruce Sandvik, Marty McGuinn, Vince McCord and Rob Swinerton.

Vince Savidge of Hopewell, who played ball 30 years ago and often wore the umpire's blue on Brokaw and University Fields in bygone days, will be behind the plate Friday. It will be his 150th umpiring assignment this season, he reports. Jim Hogarty, also active on many occasions in calling the close ones, will officiate on the bases.

MORE GOLFERS PLAYING

At Mountain View Course. The Mercer County Park Commission has announced figures showing a sharp increase in play at the Mountain View

Golf Course for the first half of the year. A total of $47,499.40, an increase of more than $7,000 over the first six months of 1962, has been registered thus far, and more than 2500 identification cards have been issued to county residents using the golf course.

A new one-day attendance record was set on Friday, July 5, when 434 golfers played on the county course. The previous high was set on Sunday, May 19, when 346 players registered. Freeholder Richard J. Coffee, Park Commission President, believes that the one-day record of 434 would probably stand for any other golf course, public or private, in New Jersey.

News Of The CHURCHES

Another in a series of reviews written for TOWN TOPICS by Princeton clergymen, commenting upon books which they find provocative. The reviewer this week is Rabbi Everett Gendler of the Princeton Jewish Center, the book, "Children of the A-Bomb," by Dr. Arata Osada.

"CHILDREN OF A-BOMB"

How can one "think about the unthinkable?" And which of us, however powerful his imagination, has the capacity to begin to feel what a nuclear war would be like? Somehow the concentric circles charting destruction areas do not touch us deeply enough, nor do statistics, however appalling they may appear. The genuinely human is missing. And the consequence, of course, is that fragile split between knowing and feeling which effectively prevents any strong reaction on our part.

What have we available to re-establish the vital connection between thinking and feeling in this crucial area, so that a proper religious response may occur?

There has recently appeared a volume, incomparably moving, which does precisely this: "Children of the A-Bomb," compiled by Dr. Arata Osada and published by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

It is a simple volume—66 short compositions by children from grammar school through high school, 66 simple yet searingly painful recollections, written six years after the event, 66 simple memories of what it was like to be a child in or near Hiroshima on August 6, 1945.

The late Dr. Osada, president of Hiroshima University, realized that he was placing a "heavy burden" on the children when, in 1951, he asked that they write such essays. And several of the children begin their essays by mentioning the pain they feel when they recall the event: "Since I was assigned this for homework, and even though I don't want to do it, I am making myself remember that awful time."

But others begin by remarking: "The atom bomb of the 6th of August of 1945, which I have not yet forgotten for a single day..." "On that August 6th of 1945, which I shall not be able to forget as long as I live..." Unhappily, the essay assignment did not "remind" the students of a painful but forgotten episode from their past; it merely permitted the ever-present memory expression.

How could it have been forgotten by Masao Baba? "Since my little sister's right eye was put out, nobody likes to play with her but she takes it without crying. But sometimes when they all laugh at her she comes home crying, so I go and see about it."

"Since they are all little kids, I can't hit them, so I just talk to them and tell them you shouldn't do that and I make them stop. When I do that in a few minutes they are all playing happily again, and at such times I feel good inside."

Rabbi Everett Gendler

If Dad were alive my sister's eye could have been fixed, but since he died and my family is so poor, there isn't any chance that we can have it done. Even when I'm going to school or to the country I can't think about anything but this little sister. I keep worrying that maybe my little sister is being snubbed by the kids in the neighborhood because of her ugly eye or that maybe they're making her, and I can't study very well."

How shall Toshio Nakamura forget? "Sometimes when I go through the streets I see children holding the hands of their fathers and mothers. These children walking along looking so happy when I see ones like this—I remember my father and mother in those days gone by. . . . At such times I am so unhappy that I can hardly stand it. And I am envious of my friends."

"However, I have got used to the thought that my father and mother have gone to that far away heaven. I'm always thinking, 'When people grow up they all lose their father and mother.' It's only that I lost my father and mother earlier than most people."

The events, of course, are "natural." Children are sometimes disfigured by accidents; we all lose loved ones. But there is a difference, and the children know it. As Mirko Hara puts it: "I hate war! I hate war! To think that my mother who was so cheerful and energetic, should be crushed beneath that big house. . . . Oh! I don't want to talk about it, I don't want to write about it!"

"The more time passes, the greater becomes my grief. I cannot become reconciled to it in the easy way that other people say one should. It was not illness that struck down my parents."

Yet out of this vast suffering there also come important and moving recollections of war, and affirmations of life: "That was really an evil atom bomb, wasn't it?" Every single day I am praying that no matter what happens there will be peace. . . . "I think that we ought never to have any more wars or atom bombs. I am praying that peace will come soon to Hiroshima. . . ."

"The atom bomb is really a horrible thing, isn't it? From now on, this must be a peaceful Japan that absolutely will not make war and such things."

Let's all work hard so that such a sad thing will never happen again."

"Every day in the trolleys and as I'm walking along the streets, whenever I see people with big scars from burns on their faces and necks and hands and so on, I think that practically all of them are from wounds they got at the time of the A-bomb and I have a feeling that I would like to run up to them so we could comfort and encourage each other."

"I believe that this is a common spirit among all the survivors. Those of us who have actually experienced with our bodies the fact that war is a frightful and wretched business—we earnestly wish to do everything in our power to be friendly with all the people of the world and to make peace last forever."

This overwhelming document, the product of deep human anguish, is a precious one and must not suffer neglect. During this summer, which will mark the eighteenth anniversary of this human tragedy, "Children of the A-Bomb" should be read devotionally by all human beings. For out of this terrible experience there have come expressions of compassion, courage, and hope which will surely stir, inspire, and move every one of us.

CATHOLICS INVITED

To Presbyterian Council. In a return gesture of good will, the World Alliance of Reformed and Presbyterian Churches will invite two Roman Catholic observers to its 19th General Council Representatives of the Alliance attended the Vatican Council called last fall by Pope John XXIV.

The invitation is an outgrowth of last week's meeting of the Alliance executive committee at Princeton Theological Seminary. A similar invitation was extended by the Lutheran World Federation, which invited Roman Catholic observers to its current assembly in Helsinki, Finland.

Representatives of 92 churches with a total world constituency of more than 48 million will gather in Frankfurt, Germany, a year from now to the General Council session. Plans include a youth conference immediately prior to the council and a consultation of theologians.

A total of 80 junior golfers received instruction during the one-week teen-age golf clinic just completed. The adult clinic in May also was successful; with 50 participants turning out for the classes.

The next major county golf event will be the Seniors Tournament for men and women over 50. The annual Pro-Amateur tournament is scheduled for Wednesday, October 2.

WINNERS LISTED

In Springdale Golf, Mrs. Loren H. Odden and Harold G. Houghton teamed together Sunday to win low net honors in a tournament for Scotch Foursomes at Springdale. They shot a 74, while low gross honors went to Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Shaw with an 82.

In the weekly women's tournament on Tuesday, Mrs. Bauer was the winner for the lowest number of putts on 18 holes with 30. Mrs. O. Kline Fulmer and Mrs. James Thornton also had 30, but Mrs. Bauer won when cards were matched. For nine holes, Mrs. Donald Leigh and Mrs. William Wilson each had 16 putts, Mrs. Leigh winning when the cards were matched.

A fellow whose hobby is the study of ancient languages was telling us that man has always had some form of communication, even in prehistoric times, and that we actually have no complete or accurate knowledge about how far back man had a written means of communication. It is known that Cuneiform script was in use more than 6,000 years ago. This method of inscribing wedge-shaped lines of inscriptions upon bronze, iron, stone, glass, or clay was used by the ancient people of western Asia more than 2500 years before any known alphabet was developed. The opposite to 'ancient' is 'modern', and in our business we have a combination of the most modern facilities and automobiles, that are sold under the most old fashioned scruples and reliability, all of which adds up to great satisfaction AND ECONOMY FOR YOU. He began his project with one lamb seven years ago, and now has a breeding flock of 25 Hampshires as well as a business in shearing. Kip will participate in the first Somerset 4-H fair next Wednesday and Thursday, to be held on Milltown Road, Somerville. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cortelyou, Old Rocky Hill Road.

Princeton Water Company has issued figures for July, showing a 36 percent increase over the same month last year. Pumps handled 106.6 million gallons last month, compared to 79.7 million in July 1962.

The figures for an average July day are 3.4 and 2.5 million gallons for 1963 and 1962 respectively. June 26 was the peak day this year with 4.75 million gallons, and the high for July occurred on the first when 4.3 million gallons were pumped. The daily record in 1962 was 3.5 million gallons.

A 72-hour ban on lawn sprinkling in June has been the only restriction on water use this year. The company checked equipment and tanks at that time.

The two new filters with a capacity of 1.5 million gallons a day were a major factor in meeting the increased demand in July, the company said. The water supply is "holding up nicely," and the wells are checked regularly.

THIS OLD HOUSE

Going . . . Going . . . Charles A. Prall of the University Museum staff has scheduled tours of his 220-year-old house in Ringoes before the highway bulldozers demolish it. The tours will be held from 2 until 7 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday.

The quaint building, located on Route 69, is known as the "Broom House" because, during its early years, brooms were manufactured there. It was restored by Mr. and Mrs. Prall after careful research of the colonial period.

The tours and an art show will benefit the Amwell Valley Ambulance Corp.

VOTES DELIVERED

Is some politics at this moment reassuring some other politics that your vote is an automatic one for all of their party's candidates? Party workers often talk of "delivering" the party's vote in their district or neighborhood as if peoples' votes were crops that you annually harvested and shipped to the polling place. We have had the temerity to run as independent candidates for Township Committee in the belief that your vote is more precious to you than that. We are confident that most people will vote with independence of thought when given reason and opportunity for doing so.

You Will Never See These Again . . .

Hidden under the inside perimeter of every basement floor, the homes at PRINCETON RIDGE have these three inch terra cotta drain tiles. Coupled with a hidden exterior coat of plaster and waterproof tar on the foundation walls, they allow us to guarantee you a dry basement.

Hidden value complements obvious values in every PRINCETON RIDGE home. See for yourself — drive out to Rocky Hill to inspect the home values all Princeton is talking about. The PRINCETON RIDGE models are open for you every day of the week.
